Stab bindings are ideal to sew together single sheets of paper. The variations of sewing patterns are endless.

1. Use 5 A4 sheets for the inside and 2 A5 cards for the cover.
2. Fold each sheet of paper in half and keep the corners aligned. Use the bone folder to crease the paper from the centre to each edge of the paper.
3. Place all folded sheets on top of each other and the covers onto the outside.
4. The fold will be the fore-edge of your book, opposite your spine. This is called a French Fold.
5. Crease your cover with a ruler and the tip of the bone folder coming in 15mm from the spine.
6. Divide the length of the height of the book into 5 to get 4 equal sewing holes. Mark the holes and pierce them with a pricker. Use one or 2 bulldog clips to keep the pages in place.
7. Use a waxed thread 4 times the length of the spine and thread it into a sewing needle. Start sewing from the inside of the spine stack. Glue the end of the thread between the pages.
8. Go over the spine and come through the same hole again.
- 9 – 18. Thread the holes as shown in the illustrations.
19. Create a knot by looping underneath the 2 last threads before you go out and push the needle half way through the spine stack. Glue the ends down and cut the ends off.
